The Beekeepers Inn Label

BRITTLE JACK (500g & 1kg Glass Jars)

The Brittle Jack tree is a eucalyptus tree found in the Central West of New South Wales. The tree prefers poorer soils and grows mainly on undulating country, is drought resistant and can handle frost and light snow. This tree is unreliable in producing honey but when it does its yields are quite high. The honey is amber (a bit on the dark side) with a strong pleasant flavour. Our present Brittle Jack honey was produced in the Orange area.

GREY IRON BARK (500g & 1kg Glass Jars)

One of the most important trees on the NSW coast for honeybees. High quality honey. Mainly grown on the Eastern edge of the Western Plains, and some coastal regions. Flowering between September and November, this species can provide high yields. The honey is of excellent quality and has a light colour, good density and a pleasant mild sweet flavour.

YELLOW BURR (500g & 1Kg Glass Jars)

(St Barnaby's Thistle) Yellow burr is common in the wheat belt on the tablelands and slopes. Flowering occurs from mid December until the frost arrives. An excellent pollen producer, with very light honey with a greenish tint, and granulates easily.

WHITE BOX (500g & 1Kg Glass Jars)

A eucalypt tree found on the Western Slopes of NSW. A most reliable source of honey with flowering occurring every 2 to 3 years. Cold nights and sunny days are necessary for good nectar flows. The honey is particularly light in colour and pleasant in flavour. This honey was produced at Cargo just west of Orange.
